 @ExtrainningsUK

Gabriel has worked in baseball for twenty years, including the last five in British baseball. He started as a journalist and radio broadcaster in high-level U.S. university sport, moving into international baseball in 2009, and founding www.extrainnings.co.uk in 2012. He has held MLB, WBSC, and NCAA credentials since 2016 and his articles have featured in Baseball America, Sport in History, MLB Trade Rumors, Mister Baseball, and numerous other websites.

In recent years, Gabriel has worked in comms for the South African Baseball Union, GB Baseball, and BaseballSoftballUK, serving a key role in the legacy events of the MLB London Series 19. In December 2020, Gabriel was named Managing Editor of Mister Baseball.

Gabriel has written extensively on national teams and tournaments—covering the World Baseball Classic, WBSC World Cups, Olympic Qualifiers, and more—while breaking a variety of international news stories and writing on British university baseball, the emergence of the sport in Africa and Asia, and more.

Gabriel's academic background also plays a significant role, as Extra Innings has created large archives on national teams, British clubs and leagues, and more. While a Ph.D. candidate, he co-founded Durham University Baseball, which won the National University Baseball Championship in its first year. He has also appeared in games in Britain for the Croydon Pirates and Cavan Comets.
